4. Introduction & Objective

The Travel and Heritage Visit Club, MNIT Jaipur, successfully organized an interactive and knowledge-based event titled “Monument Auction”. The event was designed to create awareness about world heritage monuments while simultaneously promoting teamwork, strategic thinking, and decision-making skills among students.

Objectives of the Event

- To enhance awareness of global and national heritage monuments
- To encourage team coordination and strategic planning
- To provide an engaging and interactive learning experience

5. Event Description & Proceedings

The event was conducted in the form of a live auction, where participating teams were provided with a fixed virtual budget. Teams bid on various famous monuments from around the world with the aim of building the most valuable portfolio without exceeding their allotted budget.

The live auction format generated high enthusiasm among participants. Teams actively raised paddles, competed in real time, and adjusted their strategies based on budget constraints and monument values. The presence of a high-energy auctioneer further enhanced participant engagement.

To introduce excitement and unpredictability, a mystery monument round was conducted. In this round, teams bid without knowing the monument beforehand, with its value revealed through a spin-the-wheel mechanism. Fun facts related to selected monuments were shared during the auction, adding an educational element.

A short break was provided during the event for refreshments and budget review, allowing teams to reassess their strategies before the final bidding rounds.

6. Participation & Engagement

Approximately 75 students participated in the event, forming multiple teams. Active audience participation was observed throughout the event, with students enthusiastically cheering, bidding, and supporting their teams. The competitive environment remained healthy and inclusive, fostering collaboration and learning.

7. Refreshments

Refreshments were distributed to all participants during the break, contributing to a comfortable and enjoyable event experience.

8. Awards & Recognition

After the conclusion of all auction rounds, scores were calculated based on the monuments acquired by each team.

- Top three teams were awarded certificates and trophies in recognition of their performance.
- All winners were appreciated for their strategic thinking and teamwork.

9. Sponsorship

The event was completely self-organized by the Travel and Heritage Visit Club and was conducted without any external sponsorship.

10. Feedback & Suggestions

Participant Feedback

- The live auction format was highly engaging and enjoyable.
- Team-based strategy and budget management were appreciated.
- The mystery monument round added excitement and challenge.

Suggestions for Future Events

- Provide additional time for strategy planning.
- Increase the number of mystery rounds.
- Introduce trivia-based rounds to earn additional bidding points.

11. Conclusion

The Monument Auction event was successfully conducted and met all its intended objectives. The enthusiastic participation of students and positive feedback highlighted the effectiveness of innovative, interactive event formats. The Travel and Heritage Visit Club aims to organize more such knowledge-driven and engaging activities in the future.
